

The Daily Ardmoreite.

NEWSPAPER CHAFF.

A teacher paying a visit to her old home ten years later, asked her crack scholar: "Well, Andrew how much do you remember of all my lessons?"

"Ah, ma'am, then, never a word."

"Oh, Andrew, Andrew! And have you forgotten all about the sun, the moon and the stars, the day and night, and the seasons?"

"Oh, no, ma'am! I do remember now, and you set them on the school-room table and Mars was a red gooseberry and I ate him."—Exchange.

"During the War of the Rebellion, when it became necessary to draft men for the army, a recruiting officer, Parker Mears by name, went to an island off the coast of Maine called Looe's Island. It claimed to be a plantation."

As the boat neared the shore a tall, brawny female, the mother of several stalwart sons, appeared on the rocks, and as the officer set foot on shore sternly demanded his business.

"After men for Uncle Sam," he answered.

"She immediately began to pelt him with her hard potatoes, and they came so fast and furiously that he was obliged to flee to the boat and row away as fast as possible."

Mr. Mears, when a little excited, scintillated badly. Relating the experience, he ended it with: "G-g-give her some potatoes enough, a-a-a-and she-she'll t-t-t-take R-R-Richmond."—Boston Herald.

Mr. Ogilvie, a "blue-blood" from Virginia, had recently moved to Washington, where he purchased a handsome house on a fashionable street; but, as is often the case in that city, some frame houses were in close proximity, and from these houses numerous little arches issued and played on the pavement near his house.

Little Beverly Ogilvie, aged six, watched the children longingly. One day his father saw him playing with one of the dirtiest of these little boys. He called the child to him.

"Did I not forbid your playing with those children?" said he sternly to his son.

"Yes, father, you did; but Robbie is a Virginian; you said bad boys."

Mr. Ogilvie was silenced.—Lippin's.

"How do Aldrich and his friends feel over this?" was asked of Senator Holliver when the Allison amendment was read. "I really don't know," replied the junior senator from Iowa. "I suppose they feel about like Judge Hubbard of our state the morning after Cummins beat him in the Cedar Rapids convention. Hubbard came down early and sought a place of refreshment. The barkeeper sympathetically asked him what he would have, thinking to cheer him up a little. 'All I want this morning,' said the judge gratefully, 'is a glass of ice water and a few kind words.'"

"There's nothing like a sense of humor," said Rear Admiral Buhler at Atlantic City. "In a woman, in a soldier, in a sailor, in a clerk, a sense of humor is a help and a blessing through life."

"At the same time, even a sense of humor may exist in excess. I, for my part, shouldn't care to have so great a sense of humor as a British soldier I once heard about."

"This soldier was ordered to be flogged. During the flogging he laughed continually. The lash was laid on all the harder, but under the rain of blows the soldier laughed like a man at an H. H. Davis farce."

"What are you laughing at?" the sergeant finally asked.

"Why," the soldier chuckled, "I'm the wrong man!"—Kansas City Star.

Not many men were as ready in reply as was the late Patrick Collins, mayor of Boston. At the very opening of his mayoralty came full proof of this.

There was a knock at the door of the municipal chief executive's office and in response to Mr. Collins' "Come in," entered a diminutive messenger boy.

"Oh, excuse me," said he, in a tone that suggested both disappointment and apology; "I was lookin' for de mayor."

"Well, I'm Mr. Collins," replied the official reassuredly.

"But I thought you was short?" answered the other.

And His Honor replied, "You're quite right. Can you lend me five?"—Lippin's.

Mr. Upmore crept out of bed, groped his way to the telephone, and called up the central office.

"Hello!" he said, in a low voice. "Please send word to the nearest police station that here is a burglar in my house. If they will make a quick run they can catch him. My house is No. 243—"

There was a pause of half a minute, and then a gruff voice finished the message in this wise:

"Hello, central! Youse headn't call up de cops. De burglar has got de gun wot owns his shebang covered wit a gun, an' he'll be out o' here wit de swag in about seven seconds. By, by, wis."—Kansas City Times.

Lieutenant Devan of the Drake described at a dinner in New York an English millionaire:

"This man," he said, "never earned a penny in his life. He never lacked a penny. Yet he is as careful of every shilling as though it was his last."

"I once dined with him, and, as it was raining when I came to go, I hesitated a little while before the umbrella rack in the hall."

"I hate," I said, "to start out in this rain."

"Then I laid my hand on an umbrella."

"I don't like, either," I went on, "to borrow your umbrella."

"The millionaire seized upon my handsome malacca walking stick."

"Oh, take it," he said heartily. "Take it," my dear fellow, and I'll keep this stick as security."—Boston Post.

Unknown Friends.

There are many people who have used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy with splendid results, but who are unknown because they have hesitated about giving a testimonial of their experience for publication. These people, however, are none the less friends of this remedy. They have done much toward making it a household word by their personal recommendations to friends and neighbors. It is a good medicine to have in the home and is widely known for its cures of diarrhoea and all forms of bowel trouble. For sale by F. J. Ramsey, W. B. Frame, Ardmore Drug Co., Bonner & Bonner.

Human Flesh Rendered in Caldrons Sent Out as Lard.

Chicago, Ill., June 1.—The Rock Herald prints the following this morning:

Corroboration of stories that men have fallen into the rendering caldrons at the stock yards and their flesh has been converted into lard came today.

A. M. Simons, who for more than three years was the agent of the Chicago Bureau of Charities at its stock yards station, furnished the confirmation of the story told by Up-ton Sinclair in "The Jungle" and others.

The cases that came directly under the notice were those of a boy 10 years old and the child's father. In speaking of the cases today he said he could not remember the name, though he had made a record of it at the time, and those records are still in the office of the Bureau of Charities.

"The boy, who carried his father's dinner to him every day," he said, "went too near one of the steam caldrons and his father, waiting for him, heard his death scream as he slipped and fell headlong into the scalding steam."

"The father made frantic efforts to get to the boy and his fellow workmen did all in their power, but it was ten minutes before the steam could be shut off, and by that time nothing was left of the boy but the bones."

"It must have been a haunting feeling that somehow he might see his boy's face in the steam that brought the father too near the edge of the vat, but one day, only a few weeks after the boy's death his fellow workmen saw him tumbling into the same vat."

There was no special effort made to get him out and when, after nearly half an hour, examination was made there was not a trace of him—even the bones had been dissolved."

"The flesh of this man and of the boy went on with the rendered meat in the caldron and in due time was placed in buckets and sold on the market."

We have paints, enamels, etc., in many shades for all kinds of household jobs. They are inexpensive, easy to apply and will improve things greatly.

LIVESTOCK MARKET.

Kansas City, Mo., June 2.—(Special.)—Receipts in the "quarantine" division this week so far are 173 cars, against 60 for the same period last week. Receipts have been light for some time and the quality has not been good as it was. Bulk of the offerings are grass cattle which sell very well. The run last week came in nearly all on Monday and Tuesday.

The market was depressed here on those by a heavy run at Chicago Monday and a heavy run here. Bulk of the offerings in both divisions have been received the first three days of each week for the past two or three weeks. The run in the quarantine division today is 509 cattle. Top steers sold at $4.80, which is the top for the week so far. Bulk of the offerings range from $4 to $4.45. Grass cattle sold up to $4.15 but the quality was not very good. No cows or calves were included in the receipts to speak of. Calves made $5.50, and cows are quotable at $2.50 to $4, bulls at $2.65 to $3.75, veals at $4 to $6, stock cows and heifers at $2.25 to $3.25. Light runs are expected for the future with no change in the market to speak of, excepting steady.

Hog receipts have been liberal for the past month, but in spite of this the packers have had to ship in hogs to fill their orders. The market last week declined first three days, but closed the week showing no less. The market opened Monday a little lower, but has went up to the high notch of the season again. Top today $5.50, same as yesterday, but the bulk of the hogs are selling 5 cents lower today. Run today 12,000, bulk of the hogs selling at $6.27 1/2 to $6.40, light weights up to $6.27 1/2.

Sheep receipts have been exceedingly light for some time, but all of the fed stuff has been marketed with the exception of a few scattering droves. The run from now on will come mainly from Texas and the Southwest, and the supply from that territory will not be as heavy this year as last. The run today is 6500, market a little lower on sheep, lambs steady. Bulk of the lambs range from $6 to $7.45, shorn lambs up to $6.60. Texas grass wethers today at $5.60, and these prices have been the rule for the past two or three days on this class. Light runs are looked for until the heavy Western movement starts and strong markets will rule in the meantime.

Many people put aside all thought of an outing in Colorado because they are accustomed to consider this greatest of American playgrounds as one of those impossible things beyond their means.
